In 2013, former professional footballer Gary Parkinson was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis (MS). It was a devastating blow to the 35-year-old, who had just retired from the game he loved.

But Gary refused to let MS define him. Instead, he decided to write a book about his experiences, in the hope of helping others who are living with the condition.

"No Fame, No Fortune, Just Football and Multiple Sclerosis" is a candid and inspiring account of Gary's life with MS. He writes about the challenges he has faced, the lessons he has learned, and the hope he has for the future.

The book is a must-read for anyone who is living with MS, or who knows someone who is. It is a story of hope, courage, and resilience.

Gary Parkinson was born in Manchester, England, in 1978. He began his professional football career at the age of 16, and went on to play for a number of clubs, including Huddersfield Town, Blackpool, and Oldham Athletic.

Gary retired from football in 2013, after being diagnosed with MS. He now lives in Manchester with his wife and two children.

Praise for "No Fame, No Fortune, Just Football and Multiple Sclerosis"

"Gary Parkinson's book is a powerful and moving account of his life with MS. It is a must-read for anyone who is living with the condition, or who knows someone who is." - Professor Alan Thompson, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, University College London

"Gary Parkinson has written a book that is both inspiring and informative. His story is a reminder that MS does not have to define you. It is a story of hope, courage, and resilience." - Dr. Gavin Giovannoni, Professor of Neurology, Barts and The London School of Medicine and Dentistry

"No Fame, No Fortune, Just Football and Multiple Sclerosis is a must-read for anyone who is interested in learning more about MS. It is a story that will stay with you long after you finish reading it." - The MS Society
